

The Home Edition

A NEWSPAPER MADE BY THE PEOPLE WHO KNOW YOU BEST

THE YEAR THE HOUSE GOT LOUDER

New arrivals, old recipes, a first birthday and the small moments everyone wanted to keep. This issue was made together, one memory at a time.

INSIDE

The kitchen at mid-morning

Starting the garden again

A birthday worth the front page

THE PEOPLE

A visit that became the story of the year

TOGETHER AGAIN

The trip began as a weekend visit and ended with enough stories for a whole paper. Everyone brought something: a photograph, a remembered detail, or the version of a joke that still gets told at dinner.

That is the pleasure of putting ordinary life in print. The moments do not have to be grand to deserve a headline. They only have to matter to the people reading.

HOME DESK

The kitchen, mid-morning

Recipes are memory with better instructions.

Someone remembered the exact pan. Someone else remembered the music. By the time the recipe was written down, the whole room had returned - warm, noisy, and full of people reaching across the table.

Every edition leaves room for the details a photo cannot hold on its own: who was there, what happened next, and why the story still makes everyone smile.

PHOTO DESK

The moments between the milestones

WEEKEND EDITION

One table, six stories

Nobody agreed on how the story started, which was part of the fun. The paper kept every version and gave each person a byline.

Made from real voices, approved by the people who told it, and saved in a form that can live on the coffee table.

OUTSIDE

Starting the garden again

FROM SEED

The first green shoots were enough to bring out every old piece of advice. Water less. Water more. Move them to the window. Leave them alone. The garden grew anyway.

A small update from one phone became a full-page story, ready to be read again long after the season changed.

IN PICTURES

The year, as everyone saw it

TORONTO · JULY 2026

The Rosa Gazette

PRINTED FOR ROSA · THE MONTH, IN HER HANDS

A backyard birthday, seen across the miles.

The twins helped decorate the cake, the garden bloomed, and everyone wrote a few lines so the month in her hands.

From the desk of Aunt Sarah

THE BACK PAGE

Made together, kept together

FROM THE EDITOR

Thank you to everyone who sent a photograph, answered a call, remembered a detail, and made this paper possible. This copy belongs to you.

CONTRIBUTORS

- Maya
- Leo
- Sam
- Noah
- Ava
- The home desk

Printed with care in Toronto